Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I strongly disapprove of the proposed final judgment in the Microsoft Case. As written, it fails to achieve any meaningful benefit for the software-using public. It is insufficient to curb Microsoft's use of predatory and anti-competitive tactics, which have been working against the public good for two decades. Likewise, it fails to redress the damage that Microsoft has done to the software industry and the computer-using public at large during their reign as monopolists.

Please see Dan Kegel's (<http://www.kegel.com/remedy/letter.html>) comments for further detail on the shortcomings of the proposed settlement.

Sincerely,
Jonathan D. Nolen
